We Returned to Honduras

I was in tears and in awe

We returned to Honduras a few days ago with excitement and anticipation about what God is working on in our hearts and in the hearts of those desiring to work with us, however I was unprepared for what God has been doing already!

This week when we returned I was in tears and in awe of what God has not only been doing with our projects but in the hearts and lives of the Hondurans that we have connected with! I am so humbled by God's grace and so happy that we didn't quit!

Empower and Ignite

The Honduran people catch the vision

Nutrition cooking hygiene classes

The cooking classes we started with the nursing students have continued with them incorporating the hygiene principles we desire to help the families rid the parasite infestations in their families.

Telapia feeds

Not only is the tilapia pond thriving that Dean & Estephan dug by hand before Dean came back to the US, but they had to dig another one beside it because there wasn't enough room for the growing fish in the first one.

It is our desire to empower and ignite the Honduran people to move forward in Christ and in helping their own people. We pray continually about how to do this, but I have to admit that up until our return this week I hadn't really seen this happening as of yet. When we returned we met with Lourdes (a local Honduran that is on our board here and who owns a medical laboratory in La Esperanza) along with Griesel (a local nurse that works for the hospital, works with the nursing school here, & is over the alberge where the local women stay behind the hospital while waiting to deliver their babies.) I was so amazed at the progress that has been made on our projects but beyond that, the work they have been putting into it even while we were in the US. Not only are they helping, but now there are 4 different schools helping. It is answered prayers! It is God working out the vision that He has given us! I believe it is just a start of what He plans to do and will do in the coming months!

The fish have been providing a source of protein for the ladies of the Alberge even while we were gone!

Garden Continues

The work in the garden has continued with one group getting a tractor and working the ground and preparing it to replant this coming Monday!
